By MARY CHAPPELL
Daily Herald correspondent

A 76-year-old Wheeling woman is in critical condition after being pulled from a lake in Round Lake Beach Saturday, the Chicago Sun-Times reported.

Authorities responded at 3:10 p.m. to Lakefront Park, where they found lifeguards and a bystander performing CPR on the woman, according to Battalion Chief Tony Carraro of the Greater Round Lake Fire Protection District.

Carraro said first responders then assumed medical care and took the woman by ambulance to Advocate Condell Medical Center in Libertyville.

A step backward in race relations?

Support for Confederate Railroad saddens members of the black community downtown

By JOHN HOMAN
 SOUTHERN ILLINOIS MEDIA GROUP
 jhoman@heraldherald.com

MARION — Not everyone in southern Illinois views the ouster of the band Confederate Railroad from the Du Quoin State Fair lineup over its name and logo as political correctness gone too far.

In fact, some members of the black community said the eagerness by Black Diamond Harley-Davidson dealership in Marion and others to book the group represents a step backward in regional race relations.

"Do people not understand how offensive that is?" said Stephanie Willis, director of the Boyton Street Community Center in Marion.

Willis added she doesn't understand how anyone in good conscience could book a band with "Confederate" in the name and the Confederate flag on the album cover.

The musical group, which is based in Marietta, Georgia, was scheduled to play Aug. 27 at the Du Quoin fair, but last week Gov. J.B. Pritzker ordered the Department of Agriculture, which is in charge of the fair, to cancel the performance.

J.B. Pritzker Terri Bryant

"The Confederate flag is a symbol of the hate, oppression and enslavement of African Americans," Pritzker's communications chief, Emily Bittner, said in a statement. "It was flown over states that committed treason and started a war — so that they could keep enslaving people."

Black Diamond Harley-Davidson, which is a popular concert venue in southern Illinois, this week signed the band to play there on Sept. 5. Ticket sales will start this morning.

Dealership co-owner Shad Zimbro said Confederate Railroad has a 30-year track record of delivering a family-friendly show.

"So, we brought them back to our area, where they have played many times before," he said. "I'm a big fan of music, but I'm an even bigger fan of southern Illinois and I hope everyone can set aside their differences and realize that for us it isn't about race or the varied meaning of a flag — it is about supporting the majority of people in southern Illinois."

Pritzker's decision drew a rebuke from state Rep. Terri Bryant, a Murphysboro Republican who vented her frustration Saturday on Facebook.

"I'm a firm believer in the government censoring as little speech as possible," Bryant posted. "I am a firm believer in First Amendment Rights. But, if these arbitrary 'politically correct' lines are going to be drawn for certain acts, then I would like to know from the administration where this starts and where it stops."

Bryant cited an anti-Trump album cover by the rapper Snoop Dogg, who is slated to perform next month at the Illinois State Fair in Springfield.

Former Marion City Commissioner Angelo Hightower said the controversy reveals a fundamental misunderstanding of what the Confederate symbol means to people of color and how it still strikes fear in the hearts of many.

Hightower said it would be an exercise in futility to ask Black Diamond to cancel the concert, but he doesn't believe the dealership intends to act in a racially divisive manner.

Instead, he thinks the owners view booking Confederate

Railroad as an economic opportunity. "What better way to raise revenue?" he said.

What needs to happen going forward, Hightower said, is civil dialogue between all sides.

"Nobody takes the time to try to understand other points of view anymore," Hightower said. "People need to be aware of why people on the other side feel the way they do."

Hightower, the only black person elected to the Marion council, has organized forums on various "wedge" issues before. He thinks it may be time to hold another.

Meanwhile, the mayor of nearby Harrisburg, John McPeck, said he contacted the band's booking agent about putting on a concert in his town but "was just a little too late."

McPeck said he got both positive and negative reactions to the idea of hosting a Confederate Railroad concert, but the positive comments outweighed the negative.

Unemployment checks going out two days late after system glitch

By JERRY NOWICKI
 CAPITOL NEWS ILLINOIS
 jnowicki@capitolnewsillinois.com

SPRINGFIELD — The Illinois Department of Employment Security's unemployment claim system was back online Thursday after a more than two-day outage rendered the system unable to distribute unemployment checks or accept claims and certifications online.

"The mainframe system experienced a partial loss (3 percent) of data storage," Department of Innovation and Technology spokeswoman Jennifer Schultz said in a statement, adding that staff members have successfully restored the vast majority of affected business applications."

Schultz said there were "other systems included" in the outage aside from the Illinois Benefit Information System, although it was unclear which ones. Schultz did not immediately respond to follow-up requests for clarification as to the cause of the data storage loss or the extent of its effect.

"Staff remains focused on resolving issues with the remaining impacted applications. A full evaluation of the event will be conducted to identify potential areas for improvement and to strengthen processes, posture, and resiliency to ensure this does not happen in the future," her statement said.

Benefit recipients who certified their claims on Monday will receive payments by Friday — two days later than scheduled — according to a department spokesman.

Those who were unable to certify or file new claims over the past few days should do so now, Sam Salustro said in a statement. "Payments can take up to two days to process, so those benefit recipients should expect payments by Monday."

You can file new claims or certify your unemployment status online through the Illinois Benefit Information System. You also can call (800) 244-5631 or visit your nearest office, which can be found online at www.ides.illinois.gov/Pages/Office_Locator.aspx.
